prompted the Public Health today to order the most rigid quarantine enforced on board the Hamfect by Dr. L. L. Williams, a surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, who is chief medical officer on Ellis Island, on telegraphic instructions from Surgeon General Blue.

A report is anxiously awaited by Dr. Blue today on the result of an investisuffering from vomiting, cramps and other symptoms of cholera. Williams advised Surgeon General

Blue, however, that he would make a further investigation today before passng on the mysterious cases of disease The President Lincoln has been tied up at Hoboken since the beginning of the war. For several months the liner has been used for sheltering German refugees, and two months ago 150 refugees from Tsing-tau, China, brought to the United States when the Japanese captured that fortress, were placed aboard her.

A great many of the Tsing-tau refuwere taken off the ship some tifes ago and sent to Germany, but there are still thirty Germans aboard the vessel.

Surgeon General Blue said today that the most rigid quarantine regulations will be enforced until the illness of see German vessel's crew is properly diagnosed. If it develops to be Asiatic cholera, he said that every agency of the Government would be utilized to check the spread of the plague.

tective in the Du Pont powder plant at City Point, Va.., and returned to his home about 6 o'clock yesterday evening. Detective Baur says that Meyer told him he found a person in his home who was not a member of the family and a violent quarrel ensued, followed by the shooting. As soon as the weapon was discharged and Mrs. Meyer saw the blood from the wound in her son's head she ran, screaming, into the hall and started down the stairs, she told the police. Her husband followed her, and when she fell at the second-floor landing he overtook her and held her, she said. Her screams attracted several persons that her son had been shot and was upstairs dying.

Hardly had this discovery been made when Detective Baur happened to be passing that way and was attracted by the commotion. H. R. Stewart, of 730 Third street northwest, volunteered to take the injured child to the Casualty hospital. At North Capitol and F streets he tried to make a quick turn to avoid striking a colored man, but knocked him to the pavement and then ran into a tree, damaging the machine ran into a tree, damaging the machine badly. The boy was then placed in the machine of C. O. Merchants Ask Chance To Consider Appeal for New Branch Postoffice

Congratulations upon his appointment as postmaster, coupled with the appeal that he will give early and favorable consideration to their request for additional postal facilities by the establishment of a branch office in the Postoffice Department building, were conveyed to Postmaster Merritt O. Chance ioday by the committee of the Retail Merchants' Association.

In a letter formulated yesterday meeting of the executive committee charged with procuring better postal facilities, the new postmaster is congratulated upon his advancement in the postal service in Washington, and he is wished a very successful administration. The urgent necessity for the establishment of a branch office in the Postoffice Department building is made known to the postmaster in reference to the appeal and petition of downtown business men some time ago forwarded to Otto Praeger, and rejected by Mr. Praeger as an unnecessary improvement. Mr. Chance is asked to give early consideration to this appeal and the arguments presented therein, which include a petition signed by over 1,000 merchants who deplore the lack of

Meyer
No further action will be taken by the merchants until Mr. Chance has had an opportunity to consider their request. The committee is anticipating favorable action by the new postmaster, and is giving he thought to continuing the fight for the establishment of the much-desired branch at Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

One value of this method is that the plates can be kept and as many prints made as desired. Those who viewed the exhibit, which will continue through the week, predicted a big future, particularly in the commercial field; for "hichrography," as the inventor has christened the method. The method is expected to be popular with amateurs also.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.-After living twenty-three years with a split spine. W. Nesbitt Snedeker, forty-four years old, died at Atlantic Highlands, from a heavy cold contracted ten days ago.

While acting as baggage agent and special conductor on a train, Snedeker, on August 13, 1892, fell while jumping from a moving train at West End, and was caught beneath one of the wheels. While at the Long Branch Hospital he wooed his nurse, and when he left the hospital, married her. He went to the

IN NATURAL COLOR

Device Used in "Hichrography on Exhibit in New York Shows Remarkable Results.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 .- A device for making photographs in their natural color, so simple that its future both for amateur and professional work is assured, has been perfected by Frederick E. Ives and is being demonstrated for the first time at Wanamaker's. The invention of Mr. Ives replaces the old nethod whereby the color work sufficed only for transparencies and a single picture was obtained for each sitting. With the new method the colored photographs can be finished up like any other picture and as many prints as desired made from the same exposure. As demonstrated by Wilbur C. Smith place. A lever is then moved which throws a yellow screen over the plate which has fallen forward on to the floor of the camera. This screen picks out the blue rays and throws them onto the first plate.

The other primary rays, yellow and red, go through the screen to the other two plates. One of these registers the two plates. One of these registers the image with the red rays emphasized, the other with the yellow rays. The plates, which are of the ordinary panchromatic variety, are then developed in the ordinary method. When done they are, to all appearances, identical, giving the same image. Prints are then made from the plates by the ordinary exposure to the sun. The only difference is that the plate which is the plate which is the plate which is proposed to the blue rays is printed on emphasized the blue rays is printed on blue print paper, while the other prints are made on sensitized celluloid, as on

Shows Faint Image.

When the prints are developed the blue print shows like any other blue print. The prints from the red and print. The prints from the red and yellow plates show only a faint image on the celluloid. These are then placed in a coloring bath which dyes them, the print from the red plate in a red bath and that from the yellow in a yellow bath. These prints are then superimposed upon the blue print, the red first and the yellow on top. They can then be trimmed, fastened in position with a bit of cement and then put ion with a bit of cement and then put hrough a wringer to be sure they absolutely smooth.

Since blue, red, and yellow when blended give the other colors, it can be understood how all the original colors are brought out in the finished picture. The many who viewed the display of prints in the book depart-ment, on the ground floor of the old Wanamaker store marveled at the simplicity of the method and the ex-cellent results accomplished. A reproduction of an oil painting was so well done that the photograph has all the earmarks of an original in miniature. One value of this method is that the
